

Scientific Stunts by du Ponts Will Change Every Day Living

This is one of a United States four series by Bruce Catton, NEA Washington columnist, who's out "calling on America."

WILMINGTON, Del.—East of Washington is a seemingly endless belt of waterfront docks, factories, and storage yards that extends between Philadelphia and Baltimore. In the middle of it is Wilmington; and Wilmington is a likely place for a roving correspondent to make a stop, because whatever conflict or clash of interest there may be between the New Deal administration and the nation's businessmen seems to be highlighted more vividly here than elsewhere.

Lion Wells Shut Down, Firm Seeks Police Injunction

El Dorado Company Alleges State Police Threatened Violence

DAMAGE ASSERTED

Oil Company Contends State Police Are Without Authority

EL DORADO, Ark.—(AP)—The Lion Oil Refining company of El Dorado Friday threw the Arkansas state-wide oil-well shutdown mandate into litigation for the second time, applying to chancery court here for a restraining order against the padlocking of its producing wells by state police.

Named defendants in the injunction proceedings were: Superintendent Gray Albright, and members of the police force who swooped down on the Lion's Shuler field wells Thursday night and applied padlocks to them after the company had refused to obey the mandate of the Oil & Gas Commission for a shutdown of all controlled fields.

After a preliminary presentation of the issues, including the filing of a demurrer by attorneys for the police, the hearing was recessed.

The company challenged the right of the state police to act as an enforcing agency for the state commission, contending that there was no authority in state law for padlocking the wells, charged that the police made threats of force and physical injury in the padlocking operation, and alleged that the company had suffered damage "in excess of $10,000" in the enforced shutdown.

Wells Are Padlocked

EL DORADO, Ark.—Six Arkansas State Police, headed by Supt. Gray Albright, closed down 52 wells in Shuler field of the Lion Oil Refining Company here late Thursday, acting on orders of Gov. Carl E. Bailey.

The officers were ordered here to enforce the shutdown order of the Arkansas Oil and Gas Commission on the Lion wells in the Jones sand.

The Lion company refused to comply with Oil Commission order and filed suit in Second Division Chancery Court here today, seeking a restraining order against the Commission's shutdown order.

Louisiana Graft "Is Worst Ever"

U. S. Prosecutor Asks Return of Accused Texan to Louisiana

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Assistant U. S. Attorney General O. John Rogge charged Friday in federal court that four Germans—Richard Leche of Louisiana and Seymour Weiss, Louisiana political figure, had accepted graft "in one of the most venal transactions I have ever come across."

The federal prosecutor appeared at a hearing for the removal to Louisiana of Freeman Burford, Dallas independent oil operator, who is charged jointly with Leche and Weiss with violation of the Connally "hot oil" act.

Wilmington is the du Ponts. Physically, it is overshadowed by the tall headquarters office building of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co. And the most exciting place in that building is a little room where samples of this firm's 20th century magic are on display.

Practical Magic

Whatever the du Ponts themselves may be, as a corporate unit they work magic. And the magic is of a sort to make you wonder just how important politics is, after all.

The New Deal has done things which will have a lasting effect on American life. Yet in the long run—after the name-calling has stopped, the Liberty League has been forgotten, and the term "economic royalist" has gone into the discard—it may well turn out that it is the du Ponts who have left a deeper imprint on the life of their time.

Take only, for instance, Down the shore of Delaware Bay, a huge new factory is rising, where du Pont workers will make this uncanny new textile fiber out of coal, air and water. Sheer hose can be made out of it, and sleek fabrics as well—to say nothing of toothbrushes, hair brushes, and 100 other things which aren't even in the discussion stage yet.

Or take the sink-and-float process, a cheap and handy new ore separation process which—to mention just two of its possibilities—may restore the anthracite coal industry to a profitable basis and may add 60 years or so to the productive life of the great Mesaba iron range.

Then there's a queer plastic called Lucite, which looks like glass and has the queer property of "piping" light. Take a long, corkscrew cylinder of it, apply a flashlight to one end—and the light comes out of the other like water flowing through a pipe. Already this is changing techniques in surgical and dental operations; it may also do things to home and office lighting.

Rubber, Zelan Camphor

They'll show you a species of rubber made out of coal, limestone, and salt, which will serve practically every purpose natural rubber will serve, will outlast natural rubber five times, in many uses, and which even now costs less per pound to produce than natural rubber cost during the World War.

They will show you camphor—not synthetic camphor, but real honest-to-goodness camphor—which comes, not from the camphor trees of Formosa, but from the turpentine of southern pine trees.

The list is almost endless. There's zelan, a chemical which renders a fabric water-repellant, so that you can spill a bottle of ink or a bowl of greasy soup over an evening gown, wipe the mess off with a damp towel, and come out as fresh and spotless as before. There's a new rayon cord which triples the life of a heavy-duty auto truck tire. There's something called butaclic, which makes shatter-proof glass much stronger and safer. And so on.

All of this, of course, means research—on which the du Ponts spend some $7,000,000 a year. They have a huge laboratory here, and more than two

Hungarian Minister Flies From Germany for Italian Conference

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Great Britain Friday rejected Japanese demands that economic questions be included in the discussions now going on in Tokyo on the Tientsin dispute between the two countries.

Japan was said to have been told that any discussions of economic questions must be referred to all signatories of the nine-power treaty and other relevant treaties.

Hungarian to Rome

MUNICH, Germany.—(AP)—The Hungarian foreign minister, Count Stefan Csatky, whose three-day visit prompted German editors to proclaim the wedding closer ties with his nation, suddenly boarded a government airplane for Rome here shortly after noon Friday.

Hungary With Germany

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler received Count Stefan Csatky, Hungarian foreign minister, at the Obersalzberg mountain retreat Thursday and semi-official sources hinted that an agreement was being reached for Hungary's co-operation in case of war.

A full in overt developments in the German-Polish dispute over Danzig was used by the Nazi press to front-page reports of alleged acts of terrorism against Germans in Poland and of attempts by refugees to reach the Fatherland.

Count Csatky, accompanied by Doeme Sztojay, Hungarian minister to Berlin, spent several hours with the German chancellor. Ostensibly Csatky's visit was a convey official greetings to Hitler in connection with the observance yesterday of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the German leader's enlistment as a World war soldier.

The fact that Csatky saw German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop at Fuschel castle and that he is the house guest of Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick at Leopoldskron castle, near Salzburg, indicated problems of great gravity are being discussed.

Garland Building Is Sold to O'Neal

Pays $610 for It, After Rejection of All Earlier Bids

The old Garland high school building, title to which passed to Hempstead county with the deeding over of the land on which the PWA-financed new Hempstead county courthouse is now under construction, has been sold by the Courthouse Commission to N. P. O'Neal of Hope for $610.

On public bid Claude Lauderbach offered $250, and Mr. O'Neal $100, with special provision regarding the filling up of the foundation hole after the building had been razed.

These bids were thrown out by the commission, which later decided to conduct a private sale.

Mr. O'Neal then offered to pay $550 for the building, tear it down, and fill up the foundation hole with good earth.

Members of the commission are: R. M. LaGrange, Sr., Lloyd Spencer, H. M. Stephens, and County Judge Frank Rider, ex-officio.

Squalus Is Towed Closer to Beach

Submarine Grounded in 90 Feet of Water—to Remove Bodies

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—(AP)—The Squalus neared the end Thursday night of probably the strangest voyage in submarine history after being twice lifted and towed from the 240-foot depth to which she sank May 23.

The second successful "blowing and towing" operation left the vessel grounded in 90 feet of water about four miles off the mainland and gave promise that the bodies of 26 men who died aboard her might be recovered within another two weeks.

About midway, with the Squalus being towed stern first a guide line connecting the submarine's bow and the salvage flagship Falcon snapped. Only a hawser that held the trailing Falcon to the bog pontoons prevented a sudden sway of the salvage vessel and the possible parting of at least some of the 33 air lines that ran from the Falcon's tanks to the submarine.

Within another two weeks, naval officials said, they hoped to complete the job of bringing the Squalus to the

Bowen Discloses Highway 29 Delay

Petition for U. S. Designation Mysteriously Changed, Rejected

R. P. Bowen, secretary of Hope Chamber of Commerce, disclosed Friday in a report before the Rotary club on the 29th's activities of the chamber that while this section originally applied for a federal designation on Highway 29 only from the Louisiana line to Hope the application in official channels was mysteriously changed to read "from the Louisiana line to DeQueen."

"The application in that form was promptly and justifiably rejected by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads," Mr. Bowen said. "because the distance from Shreveport to DeQueen via this route is longer than by way of No. 71, which already carries the federal designation."

Mr. Bowen reported, however, some progress had been made toward the paving of No. 29. Although not carrying the federal designation—the U. S. shield—No. 29 has been eligible for federal aid for some time from Hope to Lewisville; and recently the stretch from Lewisville to the Louisiana line also was made eligible, he said.

The chamber secretary added that a No. 29 association has recently been formed, participated in by Bradley, Lewisville, Stamps, Hope and other cities, and agitation for improvement of the road will be continued with increased force.

Other activities of the chamber during the last 12 years were summarized by Mr. Bowen as follows:

1. Saved Alton CCC camp for this section after its abandonment had been announced.
2. Helped organize the Terre Rouge Soil Conservation district.
3. Helped settle 125-acre trouble that threatened the loss of one local industry.
4. Maintained a local rest room for women and children.
5. Made a preliminary organization of the watermelon growers.
6. Re-established the Hempstead County Fair.

Thanksgiving in State Uncertain

Governor Bailey May or May Not Agree With the President

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Bailey low President Roosevelt in his announced intention of moving Thanksgiving Day up one week "if local conditions make it impossible to comply." The policy of this administration is to co-operate with the national administration so far as possible but if local conditions make it impossible I will have to vary," the governor said at his press conference in reply to a question.

"Since I do not know what local conditions will be affected I will have to await advice before making a decision. Football coaches and fans have complained that the proposed change would interfere with football schedules but the governor's office said it had received no formal petitions asking that Thanksgiving Day be left on its normal date.

It has been the custom for governors to conform to the president's proclamation but they are under no obligations. The president's proclamation is binding only in the District of Columbia and territories belonging to the United States.

Nyberg Beer Tax Bill Is Attacked

Medical School, Sanatorium Revenues Threatened by New Suit

LITTLE ROCK.—Lawyers for retail and wholesale beer dealers associations reached an agreement Thursday for filing an immediate suit challenging validity of the 1939 Nyberg Act, which places a consumers sales tax on liquor, beer and wine.

The suit will be based on the Arkansas Supreme Court ruling in the highway bond refunding case declaring Paul Gutensohn of Fort Smith an ineligible senator, it was said by J. Hugh Wharton, lawyer for the Arkansas Wholesale Beer Dealers Association and Roy Prewitt, lawyer for the Arkansas Beer Dealers and Confectioners Association.

The lawyers said several days may be required to prepare the suit. Validity of the Nyberg act was attacked in a suit brought several months ago by the Arkansas Wholesale Beer Dealers association but the Gutensohn angle was not raised.

The Nyberg Act allocated the first $300,000 of revenues from the Nyberg act to the Medical School. The sanatorium building fund was to get all the remaining tax until the state's share in matching a PWA grant to the Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Booneville and a WPA project at the McRae Memorial Sanatorium has been paid. Money then would go to the county tuberculosis fund, state Health Department and the state Welfare Department.

Mr. Gutensohn's vote was one of the 18 ballots required for passage. If his vote were thrown out the bill would fail.

The supreme court's ruling in the Gutensohn case raised the question of whether his vote on other bills also might be open to court challenge, particularly in cases where his vote was the deciding factor. Mr. Gutensohn's vote was the deciding one in the Dillon bill regulating liquor dealers and in another affecting a local measure.

Special Election Possible in Spring

Bailey Rumored Considering Putting Issue to People Then

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Bailey declined to discuss further Thursday his plans for refunding the states $140,000,000 highway bond debt, saying "the next move is up to those who do not want the state to have road construction."

Ultimate fate of the law itself remained in doubt since the Arkansas Supreme Court reserved judgment on its constitutionality pending further legal action. A decision on its validity will not be possible until the court returns from its second summer recess September 25.

Bond authorities said the state would have no further opportunity to refund until April 1, the next semi-annual maturity date of the bonds, since the supreme court ruling invalidating the emergency clause in the refunding act would prevent refinancing on the October 1 maturity date.

Without the emergency clause the act, if subsequently held constitutional, could not become effective until November 1; one month after the date on which the governor had proposed to call for redemption the state's outstanding highway obligations.

Capitol legal sources said a special election on the subject could not be called until after effective date of the act November 1. They said the governor might call a special election on the refunding act after that date if a referendum petition is filed.

These legal sources speculated that the governor might call a special election early next year in time to complete the refunding April 1.

Opponents of the refunding act continued circulation of petitions to refer the act to a vote of the people at the November, 1940, general election.

Little Rock bond dealers reported that road district "B" bonds had dropped about 11 points from 92 to 73 following the supreme court ruling. Road district "A" bonds declined from 98 1/2 to about 92 1/2 or 93.

DeVall's Bluff bridge bonds which dropped to as high as 96 1/2 after the refunding measure was introduced fell back to 85. Little change was shown in the highway "A" bonds and refunding certificates of indebtedness. The "A" bonds fell off one point from 99 to 98 and the refunding certificates dropped three points to 95.

U. S. to Expand Its Food Stamp Store

But Shortage of Funds Hampers Experiment for This Year

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Federal farm officials, setting up nation-wide machinery to expand the food stamp sale, expressed concern Friday that funds may not be sufficient to meet the applications from scores of cities eager to try this relief scheme.

Secretary Wallace estimated he had "between 50 and 60 million dollars" to use on the experiment this year.

Plans for scaling up so-called loopholes in the tax structure and raise an additional 100 to 200 million dollars a year were being drafted Friday by Treasury and congressional experts.

These men are studying plans for further modification of business taxes, and proposals that the personal income tax system be overhauled.

In both instances the rain came in the nick of time when the corn needed moisture and in both instances it fell only on the Leonard acres and on a few surrounding farms.
